

ABSTRACT

A system is disclosed to provide content analysis services. The system includes a classifier that provides one or more recommendations based on an incoming message. The classifier combines query-based classification and 5 example-based classification to classify an incoming message. The system may include a user application that allows the classifier to process and respond to incoming messages.

60209084.doc